Interactive Workout & Action Learning

Participants will get to talk about the current challenges that they are facing, what have they done and how did they do it to manage their current challenges via a variety of energizing activities with intensive and fun interactions!

Participants will be facilitated to talk about what have worked for them and what didn't and the reasons for it as they have perceived it to be.

They will identify their own situations from case studies shown from tested video training materials.

Break up into smaller teams to brainstorm on solutions and come to a consensus on how they will manage those situations.

The facilitator will guide them in cases where their solutions are either not practical enough or convincing enough by giving live demonstrations of techniques with a clear process and framework using handy toolkits based on different case scenarios and people of different personality

Closing the Feedback Loop through Engagement (Role-play) Practice

Participants will then put what they have picked up into actions through role-play practices. During the role-play, feedback will be given through self, peer, and facilitator critique

Application of Concepts

Towards the end of the workshop, participants will be facilitated to develop their own individualized S.M.A.R.T action plan for them to implement learning back at work
